

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A desk is adapted for connection to a second desk as part of a network of desks. The desk includes a desktop, a chassis positioned substantially beneath the desktop and including one or more cassettes, wherein at least one cassette includes one or more electronic 5 components, a power distribution system providing power to at least one cassette and configured to provide power to at least one adjacent desk, and an electronic connection system providing an electronic connection from the one or more electronic components to an electronic component located in an adjacent second desk. The power distribution system and the electronic connection system are positioned substantially beneath the desktop and extend
10 approximately from a first side of the desktop to a second side of the desktop.

50165976